| 10.45 – 12.00 | Availability of insolvency data
In many occasions, legal reform takes place with limited data to inform policy makers of the weaknesses of a system. Unfortunately, data limitations also prevent a clear measurement of the success (or not) of the reforms implemented. What data is needed to have a clearer picture of the insolvency landscape -and what are the best mechanisms to obtain it, systematize it and publicize it?

Moderator: Sergio Muro, World Bank Group
Leny Calderón Arévalo, INDECOPI, Peru
Susana Hidvegi, Former Chief Bankruptcy Judge, Colombia
Hugo Sanchez, Superintendent of Insolvency and Entrepreneurship, Chile |
| 12.00 – 13.00 | Lunch |

13.00 – 14.45

Peer-to-Peer discussion

Each country will give an update on their insolvency and restructuring laws and practice.

Andres F. Martinez, Latin America Round Table Co-Chair, INSOL Fellow, World Bank Group

Questions:

1. How old is your current legislation? What is the name of the law, and what entities does it cover i.e. corporates only or unincorporated entities and individuals?
2. Are there any areas for improvement that the key users of the law have identified?
3. Have there been any recent amendments? What is the reform agenda going forward?

14.45 – 15.15

Coffee break

15.15 – 16.30

Creditor's rights in Latin America - a comparative panel

Maintaining a balance between creditors' and debtors' rights is crucial for a healthy insolvency system. Historically, many Latin American countries have been perceived as having strong shareholders' rights and being more debtor-friendly. Recent reforms have aimed to address this imbalance. For instance, Brazil's recent reform allows creditors to present competing restructuring plans. This panel will explore the current status of creditors' and debtors' rights in Latin American countries and discuss the impact of recent legislative changes.

Moderator: Hon. Judge Daniel Alonso, Jozgado enco Civil y Comercial, Argentina
Ignacio Inigo, Cuatrecasas, USA
Oscar Palomino, Palomino Abogados, Mexico
Isabel Picot, INSOL Fellow, Galdino Abogados, Brazil
